Wine was given to make us cheerful, not to make us behave shamefully; to make us laugh, not a laughing stock; to make us healthy, not sick; to mend the weakness of the body, not to undermine the soul.

“We thought of wine as something as healthy and normal as food and also as a great giver of happiness and well-being and delight. Drinking wine was not a snobbism nor a sign of sophistication nor a cult; it was as natural as eating and to me as necessary, and I would not have thought of eating a meal without drinking either wine or cider or beer.”

— Ernest Hemingway
